Overview

This document provides the Graduate School of Education and Human Development (GSEHD) school-wide criteria for faculty appointment, reappointment, tenure, and promotion. Academic Departments in GSEHD at The George Washington University (GWU) may have additional criteria that speak to specific expectations of scholarship in the candidate's discipline. Departments may establish their own procedures for the review and evaluation of teaching, scholarly productivity, and service. Departmental criteria may supplement the GSEHD's criteria and procedures (described herein) which constitute the required minima.

Recommendations for appointments, reappointments, promotions, and tenure shall be made solely on the basis of merit, except where the academic or fiscal needs of the University have changed. In such a case those factors may also be considered in determining recommendations. All regular faculty members in GSEHD should be given a reasonable opportunity to generate evidence of teaching ability and productive scholarship. At all times, recommendations for appointments, reappointments, promotions, and tenure shall be made regardless of race, color, religion, sex, sexual preference, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, or any other category protected by applicable law. (Faculty Code IV. E.)

Department Chairs shall make known to all members of their Departmental faculty the GSEHD's criteria and procedures pertaining to personnel action as well as any additional Departmental guidelines. The Chair of each Department shall notify each regular faculty member of his or her eligibility for consideration of reappointment. The Chair will provide to the faculty member a list of materials that the faculty member must submit by a specific date in order to be considered for reappointment. A faculty member who submits the required materials by the deadline will be considered a candidate for reappointment. The materials should be submitted in an organized dossier which becomes the property of the Department. Faculty members are strongly encouraged to keep a copy of the materials submitted.

The criteria and procedures for personnel action set forth in this document shall apply to all regular members of the GSEHD as defined by the Faculty Code of GWU particularly section IV on Appointment, Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion and its amendments.

Making judgments of academic excellence is a complex matter and cannot be reduced to a quantitative formula. The considerations applicable in individual cases cannot always be adequately described in specific terms since the merits of each personnel action case are considered individually. The criteria to be applied in all cases must represent excellence in the quality of the candidate's performance as a teacher, scholar, and contributor to the work of the GSEHD, the GWU, and the broader profession. The candidate's productivity shall reflect a serious and sustained commitment to a life of scholarship. All additional Departmental criteria for appointment, promotion, and tenure must be consistent with those adopted by the GSEHD and its mission.

Failure by the University to conform to these procedures and the timelines contained in them will not be grounds for a rehearing/re-review unless the failure materially damages the candidate's chances.

Recruitment and Appointment of Faculty

- A. Recruitment: The Dean of the GSEHD shall initiate and supervise the recruitment of faculty members as follows:
1. Program faculty shall regularly review the teaching and research needs of the GSEHD and determine the credentials, teaching areas, and other aspects desired in prospective appointees. This discussion shall serve as the basis for developing position requests with supporting position descriptions for presentation to the GSEHD Dean and for approval by the University. If a position is approved, the Department Chair appoints a search committee, and submits the committee names to the dean for approval.
 2. The Search Committee shall conduct a faculty search following the GSEHD and University policies and procedures. The Committee shall screen applicants and determine the top-rated applicants for the position, who shall be invited on campus for interviews and presentations. The GSEHD Dean is to be notified of candidates selected for interview and provided an opportunity to screen the credentials and then interview each candidate who shall be invited for a campus interview.
- B. Appointment: The appointment of full-time faculty shall follow the following criteria:
1. An earned doctorate is required for appointment to the rank of assistant professor or higher.
 2. No candidate shall be appointed who has her/his last degree from the appointing Department. This rule does not apply to persons who have been employed away from the institution for five years or more following the awarding of the degree. Exceptions to this rule may be made only with a recommendation of the GSEHD SWPC and the GSEHD Dean.
 3. All regular and specialized faculty appointment requests must be initiated by a particular Department and the recruitment and search process should be housed in that Department. Departments should participate in the selection and evaluation of criteria for the hiring of faculty at a particular level (assistant, associate, full). To be hired, candidates must meet four criteria: attainment of a relevant degree; demonstrated, or potential for, excellence in teaching and administration; demonstrated, or potential for, excellence in scholarship; and demonstrated knowledge of areas of specialization appropriate to the position being filled. The criteria for determining the rank of the appointment other than instructor or assistant professor shall be the same as those used in recommending promotion to that position.
 4. The faculty of the Department in which the search is conducted, shall arrive at its recommendations for hire by secret ballot. A majority vote of all eligible faculty in the Department is required for a positive appointment recommendation in the form of a ranked list of candidates to be forwarded to the GSEHD Dean by the Department Chair.

5. The GSEHD Dean shall recommend to the Provost/Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs the person to be hired, her/his rank, and other conditions of employment. The GSEHD Dean shall inform the Department Chair in writing of her/his recommendation to support or reject the Department recommendation.
- C. Joint appointments: Joint appointments with two GSEHD Departments or with other units of the University shall be made according to similar procedures, integrating these procedures with those of other units and in accordance with the Faculty Code.
- D. Research faculty, clinical faculty, regular part-time faculty, and visiting faculty appointments: The GSEHD Dean, in consultation with pertinent faculty, is authorized to make appointments for research faculty, clinical faculty, regular part-time faculty, and visiting faculty after timely notification, subject to the approval of the Provost/Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs.
- E. Other faculty appointments: The GSEHD Dean is authorized to make other part-time faculty appointments, related to teaching specific courses, in consultation with the director/coordinator of the appropriate degree program and the Department Chair, subject to the approval of the Provost/Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Reappointment, Promotion, and Tenure

- A. Annual Evaluation of Faculty: The GSEHD Dean and Department Chair are responsible for conducting annual evaluations of each GSEHD's faculty member's performance in accordance with University guidelines. In the spring semester each year, full-time faculty are required to complete the Annual Report form, covering their professional activities and accomplishments during the academic year. This annual reporting provides an opportunity for faculty members to update information in their personnel files on degrees, publications, committee assignments, and other research and service activities. The Department Chair shall evaluate the completed Annual Report forms, provide comments, and then forward the annual report and evaluation forms to the GSEHD Dean. The Dean completes the Annual Report form by adding comments and recommendations. The faculty has the opportunity to review and to respond in writing to comments that Department Chairs and the GSEHD Dean have appended to the Annual Report. The Annual Reports are then forwarded to the Office of the Provost/Vice President for Academic Affairs where they become part of the faculty member's personnel file. This process provides an excellent opportunity for Department Chairs and the GSEHD Dean to discuss with individual faculty members their continuing professional development.

- B. Teaching Loads and Service Assignments. Teaching loads and service assignments for all regular faculty in a Department should be structured so that during the term of each appointment, consistent with the University's needs, each regular faculty member in that Department or GSEHD has a reasonable opportunity to generate evidence of teaching ability and productive scholarship.

The GSEHD Dean makes recommendations on GSEHD faculty reappointment to the Provost/Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs based on Departmental recommendations. Promotion and tenure personnel actions in the GSEHD involve a dual evaluation process that is initiated by the Department of the individual faculty member (candidate) for such action. The Department of the candidate shall act on such requests and initiate reviews for reappointment, promotion, or tenure following the established GSEHD criteria and procedures that are delineated in this document. The SWPC may request and gather additional information, documentation, or clarification regarding recommendations they are considering. Recommendations shall be determined by committee members holding equal or higher rank relative to the considered action.

- C. Pursuant to GSEHD bylaws pertaining to decisions on tenure, reappointments, and promotion to Associate Professor, only tenured GSEHD faculty members are eligible to vote. For reappointment and promotion to Professor rank, only tenured GSEHD faculty of the Professor rank are eligible to vote at the Department and, School levels. The review of candidates for promotion and/or tenure shall be initiated by the Personnel Committee of the candidate's Department. In the event that the Department Chair of candidates seeking personnel action is ineligible to serve as Chair of the Departmental Personnel Committee, a Chair shall be elected by the eligible Departmental faculty to carry out the pertinent tasks. If no one is eligible to serve in the candidate's Department, an ad hoc committee of full, tenured professors must be constituted to review the promotion request. Among eligible faculty present and voting in the Department's Personnel Committee a majority vote is required for a favorable recommendation on all personnel actions to the SWPC. The Chair of the Department Personnel Committee of the candidate seeking personnel action shall forward to the SWPC a memo summarizing the deliberation of the Department's Personnel Committee concerning the candidate's personnel request, the numerical vote on the action, and the committee's recommendation, along with the material submitted by the candidate. A copy of the recommendation shall be provided to the candidate's Department Chair. In the case of regular part-time and visiting faculty appointments, Department Chairs should initiate this request, since all faculty appointments should have a department affiliation.
- D. The GSEHD School-Wide Personnel Committee (SWPC) shall act only on the promotion and/or tenure requests by individual faculty members and initiate an independent review taking into account the criteria and procedures established by the Faculty Code, the GSEHD Bylaws, and the candidate's Department. The SWPC shall review all of the submitted material pertaining to the candidate's request. These materials include all documents submitted by the candidate in a dossier, the numerical vote, the Department Personnel Committee Chair's summary of the deliberations, the recommendation by the Departmental Personnel Committee concerning the candidate's request, and other relevant documentation.

The GSEHD SWPC shall then forward its recommendation including the numerical vote and summary of its deliberations to the GSEHD Dean and provide a copy of the SWPC recommendation to the candidate's Department Chair.

E. The GSEHD Dean shall review and consider all submitted documentation including the dossier submitted by the candidate, the external letters evaluating the candidate's record, the recommendation and summary of deliberations by the Departmental Personnel Committee, and the recommendation and summary of deliberations by the GSEHD SWPC. The GSEHD Dean shall formulate her/his recommendation regarding the personnel action request by faculty candidates and forward it to the University Provost. The dean will provide a copy of the recommendation to the candidate's Department Chair.

F. Criteria for reappointment, promotion, and tenure: The GSEHD shall adopt and publish its own criteria and procedures for reappointment, promotion, and tenure consistent with the criteria and processes in the Faculty Code of GWU. These criteria shall apply to all departments within the GSEHD. Later sections of this document detail the criteria and procedural guidelines of all such personnel actions.

G. The following may constitute compelling reasons for the GSEHD SWPC or the Dean to independently concur or nonconcur with a faculty recommendation:

1. Failure by the recommending faculty to meet the burden of substantial evidence or otherwise provide adequate reasons, including insufficient support of external reviewers, to demonstrate that the candidate meets, or fails to meet, the applicable standards of excellence;
2. Failure to conform to published tenure or promotion policies, procedures, and guidelines.
3. Arbitrary, capricious, or discriminatory action at any point in the process
4. Deans are entrusted with the fiscal health of the GSEHD and may consider significant financial or programmatic constraints.

GSEHD Guidelines for Tenure and Promotion Review of Tenure-Accruing and Tenured Faculty

Promotion or tenure-granting decisions have vital importance to an institution of higher education, where the quality of education is dependent upon the strength of scholarship, the quality of teaching, and prominence of individuals appointed as members of the faculty. The primary duty of tenured faculty in such institutions is to provide a rigorous, fair, and effective review of a candidate's progress towards tenure and promotion. The process begins with the tenured faculty review, which is governed by clear, objective, and equitable standards and procedures. These policies and procedural guidelines are outlined in this document. The George Washington University Faculty Code (amended in 2015) contains rules and procedures for appointments, renewals, promotions, and tenure. It is the authoritative and definitive guideline. The guidelines that follow in this document are intended to augment those University standards by specifying rules and procedures particular to the GSEHD.

The GSEHD Dean and the pertinent Department Chair have the responsibility to formally inform an eligible faculty member of the criteria and procedures for tenure and/or promotion during the first month of her/his appointment in the current position. This notification may be in the form of a letter with the criteria and procedures attached. The GSEHD Dean and the pertinent Department Chair shall inform the candidate during the annual evaluation process about whether she/he is making satisfactory progress toward promotion and/or tenure.

I. The Faculty Development Panel for Tenure Accruing Faculty

- A. With input from tenured faculty in the candidate's Department, the Department Chair recommends and the GSEHD Dean appoints members of the Faculty Development Panel, that shall be established at the inception of the candidate's position by the Department Chair. With the candidate's concurrence, a Faculty Development Panel comprising a minimum of two tenured faculty members (one of whom must be appointed in the candidate's Department) who have expertise in the candidate's or a closely related field shall offer informal guidance to the tenure-accruing candidate as she/he works towards tenure. The Faculty Development Panel shall assume a mentoring and advisory role and not assume any formal supervisory or performance evaluation role. This Panel shall meet with the candidate at least twice annually to provide guidance and support during the candidate's progress towards attaining tenure and promotion. Faculty Development Panel members may request copies of the candidate's annual personnel evaluations and/or curriculum vitae from the candidate, as necessary.
- B. After the tenure decision of a candidate, the mentoring and advisory role of the Faculty Development Panel for that faculty member shall cease.

II. Midcourse Evaluation of Tenure-Accruing Faculty Guidelines

- A. Every tenure-accruing candidate shall receive a midcourse evaluation of her/his progress towards attaining tenure. Candidates are informed by September 1 that a mid-course review will be undertaken during the academic year. The midcourse review process itself, along with the feedback it generates, is intended to be constructive, informative, and help strengthen the areas in which the candidate may need improvement to increase the likelihood of a successful tenure decision. Candidates who have negotiated a shorter tenure clock upon appointment shall have their review completed during the academic year when their tenure midcourse falls.

- B. Candidates in tenure-accruing positions must submit to their Department Chair materials that comprise the midcourse review dossier following the tenure guidelines for dossier composition (see material listed in the "Dossier Content" section) by February 1.
- C. The candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee shall review the submitted material, meet to deliberate, and then make recommendations to the GSEHD Dean regarding the progress of the candidate towards tenure by March 1. In most cases this review has contract implications and the resulting recommendation by the Departmental Personnel Committee shall include recommendation for renewal or non-renewal of the candidate's contract.
- D. The Departmental Personnel Committee may, in consultation with the GSEHD Dean or her/his Associate for Academic Affairs, seek input from the candidate's Faculty Development Panel and/or external evaluation of the submitted mid-course dossier by scholars in other institutions to assess the candidate's dossier of accomplishments in the area of scholarship. All external reviewers, if this option is pursued, shall have no conflict of interest with the candidate.
- E. The midcourse dossier material and the resulting Department recommendation shall be forwarded to the GSEHD Dean by the Chair of the candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee no later than March 1. The Department Chair shall inform the candidate of the outcome of this midcourse review in writing no later than March 31 of the midcourse evaluation year.

III. Criteria for Tenure and Promotion Personnel Actions for Tenure Accruing and Tenured Faculty

The productivity and contributions of faculty applying for tenure and/or promotion are carefully evaluated in the GSEHD at the George Washington University. The guidelines described below are consistent with the University Faculty Code and delineate specific criteria for the evaluation of the promotion and tenure applications in the GSEHD. This document provides details and explanation of the GSEHD's bylaws for tenure and/or promotion that apply to all tenure-accruing and tenured faculty members in the GSEHD.

In the GSEHD, recommendations and decisions regarding promotion to the rank of Associate Professor or tenure at the Associate or Professor ranks are based on excellence in scholarship, teaching, and engagement in service.

To be considered for tenure and/or promotion to the rank of Associate Professor, the candidate must have demonstrated excellence in scholarship, teaching, and engagement in service since her/his appointment at GWU, as well as relevant prior experience as included in her/his letter of appointment. In scholarship, the candidate should have maintained an active program of research that establishes excellence and contribution to her/his field, as evaluated by the candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee, the GSEHD SWPC, and the GSEHD Dean as aided by input from external reviewers. In teaching, the candidate should have effectively taught a schedule of courses that meets her/his program's needs at a demonstrated level of excellence. She/he should have demonstrated excellence in engaging in service and/or administrative contributions to the Department, the School, or the University, as well as to the profession and community. When appropriate, teaching evaluations should include not only teaching at the program level, but also at the Department, School, and University levels.

To be considered for promotion to and/or tenure at the Professor rank, the candidate must have demonstrated excellence in scholarship, teaching, and engagement in service as evaluated by the candidate's Department Personnel Committee, the GSEHD SWPC and the GSEHD Dean, aided by input from external reviewers. The candidate's scholarly work must be seen as having significantly advanced or served the field with the expectation that through her/his scholarship, the candidate will have achieved a national and or international reputation.

What follows is a detailed description of the evaluation requirements and the procedures to be followed when a request for tenure and/or promotion is evaluated in the GSEHD. The candidate submitting the request for tenure and/or promotion must provide information about the scope of her/his work, as well as evidence of excellence in her/his contributions in each of the areas of scholarship, teaching, and service.

1. Scholarship

The GSEHD recognizes the importance of multiple perspectives and forms of empirical or other scholarship including, but not limited to, critical research, evaluation research, interpretive research, policy and practice research, synthesis research, or theory development.

Faculty members are expected to be continuously and effectively engaged in scholarly activity of high quality and excellence. Such scholarship shall be valued in advancing the faculty member's field and should reflect a continuing research agenda. Evidence of scholarly excellence shall be established through careful evaluation by the GSEHD Faculty. Collaboration is viewed as a means of high quality scholarship and valued cross-disciplinary research. The quality of the research and the relative contributions of the participants in joint work must be weighed.

Documentation of the role and contribution of the individual is expected for collaborative efforts. A faculty member's scholarship is expected to contribute to the body of knowledge and scholarship in her/his respective field.

The GSEHD Faculty shall use the GSEHD's criteria and guidelines for scholarship accomplishments in evaluating requests for tenure and promotion. In order to be recommended for tenure and promotion, a tenure-accruing and/or tenured faculty member must present clear evidence of her/his performance record, accumulated consistently over her/his professional career and the period of her/his service in the current academic rank in the GSEHD. This record must demonstrate substantial and significant achievement according to the GSEHD's evaluative criteria for faculty members. Furthermore, this record should provide reasonable support for a judgment that the faculty member will continue to perform and achieve in substantial and significant ways throughout an extended academic career in the GSEHD and University.

Expectations of excellence. A candidate for tenure and/or promotion is expected to be involved in continuous productive research, writing, and creative effort. Recent publications and scholarly presentations at professional meetings are important evidence of present and probable future activity. The GSEHD values both multi-authored and single-authored scholarly works. The quantity of published material is not sufficient evidence of scholarship. The quality of each endeavor undertaken by the candidate must be carefully documented and is more important than quantity. Quality is judged in terms of contributions, creativity, significance, rigor, discriminating judgment, focus of scholarship, and conformity with accepted standards of professional ethics and integrity. Quality is also judged by the significance of the work as indicated by the stature of the journal or other media in which it is published. Grants awarded on the basis of the scholarly merit of the proposal shall also be considered indications of high quality scholarship. Presentations at refereed conferences and professional meetings as well as invited addresses to major professional and civic organizations are also valued and shall supplement the merits of the candidate's scholarship.

Documentation of excellence in scholarship is expected to occur in the form of publication of manuscripts in selective journals as well as other formats that would be considered evidence of scholarly activity. Additional evidence may include citations in scholarly and professional books and journals; the salience of journal stature; utilization of findings by policy makers, practitioners, or judicial bodies; reprinting of documents; abstraction for other publications; or other forms of recognition by colleagues in the field. Documentation of the quality of journals and other outlets is required of the candidate. An addendum of scholarly activities may be submitted by the candidate up to the day before the Departmental Personnel Committee meets to consider the personnel action request.

What follows are examples of scholarly activities commonly considered in tenure/promotion decisions.

- A. Research and published works: No specific number of products, single authored or coauthored, determine a pattern of productivity. Emphasis shall be placed on the body of work produced by the candidate as manifested by the qualitative aspects of scholarly contributions, such as their importance, rigor, originality, and scope. In addition, work published prior to assuming the tenure-track position at GSEHD shall be considered. Typical patterns of productivity can be, but are not limited to, at least and on average, one refereed scholarly work each year since the candidate's initial appointment at GWU. While this example is a typical minimum, the GSEHD values the quality of scholarship as superseding any absolute number of scholarly products.

Research and published works may be a combination of the following:

- Articles in blind peer-reviewed journals and publications

- Books published by a respected press with a national reputation and distribution
 - Edited books published by a respected press with a national reputation and distribution
 - Refereed monographs, full papers published in conference proceedings, or standardized test manuals published by a respected and nationally recognized press
 - Chapters in an edited book
 - Other refereed products, include computer-based projects, published videos or multimedia works, or scholarly exhibits
 - Invited articles in refereed publications
- B. Funded grant proposals by nationally recognized agencies and foundations.
- C. Presentations at professional meetings: Evidence of presentations at professional meetings (regional, national, or international) with indication of refereed and non-refereed conference presentations.
- D. Other: Other examples of scholarship may include (but are not limited to) curriculum development packages, editorial responsibilities for a scholarly publication, book reviews (invited and juried), commissioned papers, technical or grant reports, unpublished manuscripts, non-refereed journal articles, seminars, other invited presentations, major exhibits and demonstrations, and submitted but unfunded grant proposals.

2. Teaching

Excellence in teaching and academic advising is essential in promotion and tenure decisions. The candidate under review for tenure and/or promotion is expected to be regularly and effectively engaged in teaching and advising activities of high quality. The dissemination of knowledge through effective teaching has many manifestations, including classroom instruction, the skillful use of technology, and a broad range of faculty-student relationships. Instruction is expected to reflect the expertise and skillful use of the faculty member's own research and knowledge gained over the years, which would enhance the learning experience of students.

Teaching is broadly defined to include activities such as classroom instruction, instruction using technological media, laboratory or clinical setting instruction, academic advising, dissertation/thesis advising and directing, mentoring, program building, and curricular innovation. Factors considered in assessing teaching performance or promise include (but are not limited to) knowledge of the material; clarity of delivery; effective communication skills; helpfulness in learning; style of interaction with students; availability; professionalism; institutional compliance and ethics; and ability to stimulate further education.

It is the responsibility of the GSEHD's administration and the candidate to plan teaching assignments so that the candidate has the opportunity to gain experience and develop skills in the various types of coursework relevant to the educational mission of the GSEHD and her/his program while teaching in areas that are appropriate for the candidate. The responsibility for the evaluation of teaching performance rests in the candidate's academic Department. Each academic Department shall have clearly developed and disseminated criteria to be used in the evaluation of the teaching performance of its faculty. The evaluation should include course evaluations by students and peer evaluations by colleagues. Evidence of the candidate's teaching and advising skills shall be collected and considered in the tenure and/or promotion review process.

Expectations of excellence. Excellence in teaching is commonly considered to include (but is not limited to) the following factors:

- Knowledge of a field and developments in it
- Skillfully communicating with students, arousing their interest, and helping them to learn substantive content and skills
- Stimulating students to think critically
- Leading students to appreciate the nuances of fields of knowledge
- Applying knowledge to solving problems, when appropriate

Specific aspects of teaching to be considered include course development, classroom teaching, student advising and mentoring, and responsibility for doctoral dissertations. The GSEHD expects its faculty to demonstrate evidence of teaching quality and effectiveness through the following ways:

- Student course evaluations: Positive written summary evaluations as evidenced by student course evaluations that generally demonstrate at or above Departmental average overall instructor and course ratings (required).
- Course development and practice: Sustained involvement in curriculum review and evaluation, self-directed learning activities, and if called for, innovative and creative change of teaching methods, materials, and pedagogy, as evidenced by course syllabi with additional comments about changes, innovations, and improvements (required).
- Peer evaluations: Generally positive peer evaluations (required).
- Advising and dissertation/thesis supervision: Advising students and supervising theses, master's projects, or dissertation research and serving on dissertation committees, as evidenced by documentation of the numbers of students advised, degree objectives, and the advisory role (i.e., Chair, committee member) (required).
- Student support and development: Teaching activities that involve student development and support or the conduct of seminars, workshops, resource and instructional websites, or other learning experiences for students, faculty, alumni, or other interested groups as evidenced by the number of students advised, degree objective, and the advisory role. Additional evidence may include documentation of involvement in student activities, mentoring, dissertation seminars, and alumni accomplishments.
- Other: Evidence of remaining current in and/or expanding on one's field of specialization through appropriate faculty development activities as evidenced by, for example, teaching assignments elsewhere, team teaching, conduct of professional seminars or workshops, participation in teacher effectiveness workshops, attendance at professional conferences, obtaining additional degrees or certificates, etc.

3. Service

The GSEHD values and expects its faculty members to demonstrate excellence in academic service to the University, the community, and the profession. By virtue of their special scholarly or professional qualifications and expertise, faculty members often render distinctive academic service to various committees, boards, scholarly/professional organizations, councils, schools, and other entities outside the GSEHD. This may include service such as membership on University committees, consultation with a variety of institutions, appointment to a leadership position of a scholarly and/or professional organization, and appointment as an editor or editorial board member for a scholarly journal. In general, a constructive record of academic service is a positive factor in personnel action decisions. Service to community organizations and governmental agencies in advisory or consulting roles constitutes an important factor.

The candidate can effectively serve through accomplishments and contributions beyond those expected in teaching and scholarship. The following activities are valued.

A. Internal Service

1. Administrative Responsibilities: Examples of functions and tasks under this category include:
 - a. Coordinate, administer, and manage programs: This may include service as a program area coordinator or project/program director, Department Chair, dean, and other related administrative contributions.
 - b. Develop new offerings or enhance existing offerings in her/his program.
 - c. Evaluate programs, including assessment of goal accomplishment, student satisfaction, and other related functions.
 - d. Contribute to and lead program development efforts.
 - e. Assume leadership in accreditation and program evaluation activities.
 - f. Develop and evaluate initiatives that promote the program and its growth and quality.
 - g. Market the program and/or recruit new students.
 - h. Work with regular and adjunct faculty to provide a consistently high-quality program of instruction.
 - i. Coordinate clinical training activities such as arranging and overseeing clinical placements, providing clinical supervision, and coordinating an off-site training facility.
2. Membership on committees: Participate on standing and ad hoc committees at the University, School, and Departmental levels.
3. Completion of special projects and assignments: Engage in services such as, but not limited to, editing GSEHD and University publications, coordinating a colloquium series, advising a student organization, or providing clinical service to an organization.

B. External Service

1. Participation in the profession: Participate in professional organizations and societies (state, regional, national, or international) as an officer, conference organizer, discussant/Chair of conference sessions, committee Chair, editor, advisory or editorial board member, or committee member; completion of a special assignment; or contribution through workshop or discussion presentations at state, regional, national, or international meetings. Candidates seeking the rank of Professor should have exhibited leadership in service activities such as chairing committees, serving as an external reviewer for other institutions, carrying out administrative responsibilities, authoring a report or editorial, holding governing board memberships, or serving as a journal editor.
2. Communication to the field: Publication of service-oriented papers, such as reports of meetings or events, magazine columns, bulletins, videotapes, manuals, magazine articles, opinion pieces, calls for action, and other forms of writing that do not necessarily meet the criteria for scholarly publications listed above.
3. Consultant to community organizations: Service to community or global organizations, such as schools, school districts, community/business organizations, nonprofit organizations, or social service agencies.

IV. Procedural Guidelines for the Evaluation of Requests for Tenure and Promotion of Tenured Faculty

A . Midcourse Review: Every tenure-accruing candidate shall receive a midcourse evaluation of her/his progress towards attaining tenure. The midcourse review process itself, along with the feedback it generates, is intended to be constructive, informative, and help strengthen the areas in which the candidate may need improvement to increase the likelihood of a successful tenure decision. Candidates with a shorter tenure clock shall have their review completed during the academic year when their tenure midcourse falls. Candidates are informed by September 1 that a mid-course review will be undertaken during the academic year. Candidates in tenure-accruing positions must submit to their Department Chair materials that comprise the midcourse review dossier following the tenure guidelines for dossier composition (see materials listed at the end of this document) by February 1. The candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee shall review the submitted material, meet to deliberate, and then make recommendations to the GSEHD Dean regarding the progress of the candidate towards tenure by March 1. The candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee shall discuss strengths and weaknesses of a candidate, and offer appropriate suggestions and mentoring in regard to new or more productive approaches or directions in scholarship or dissemination of results, more effective use (or improvement) of teaching skills and knowledge, and more appropriate service assignments. In most cases this review has contract implications and the resulting recommendation by the Departmental Personnel Committee shall include recommendation for renewal or non-renewal of the candidate's contract. The Chair of the candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee shall forward to the GSEHD Dean the information regarding the progress of the candidate towards tenure by March 1. The Department Chair shall inform the candidate of the outcome of this midcourse review in writing no later than March 31 of the midcourse evaluation year.

B. For tenure-accruing faculty, the promotion and/or tenure review process must be completed at least one academic year before her/his current contract term expires. For tenured faculty seeking promotion, the review follows the same timeline. The candidate must by April 1 be notified by the office of the Dean in writing of her/his eligibility for tenure and the requirements of the process. Accordingly, the Department Chair is required to meet with the faculty candidate no later than April 30 of the academic year before the promotion and/or tenure application is to be reviewed to discuss the GSEHD guidelines, procedures, and the required promotion/tenure dossier contents. No later than June 1 of the academic year immediately preceding that during which the promotion and/or tenure request is reviewed, the candidate must submit to her/his department chair a list of potential scholars in the field who might serve as external reviewers, along with copies of materials to be sent to the reviewers which include [her/his] research statement, curriculum vitae, published papers and selected papers under review. By September 15 the candidate must submit to her/his Department Chair a complete dossier containing documentation of accomplishments in the areas of scholarship, teaching, and service (see "Dossier Content" section below) that is to be considered for personnel action following the guidelines delineated in this document. The Department Chair shall then seek external evaluations of the candidate's dossier in the form of submitted letters following the guidelines set forth by this document.

C. Evidence of excellence in scholarly work must be established by at least five (5) letters from external experts about the quality of work and any other evidence of the impact or influence of the work on the scholarly literature. For tenure and/or promotion to the rank of Associate Professor, the Department Chair shall obtain at least five (5) letters evaluating the quality of the candidate's scholarly work written by external experts in the field of the candidate's expertise and scholarship. For promotion to the rank of Professor, the Department Chair shall obtain at least five (5) letters attesting to the quality of the candidate's scholarly work from widely recognized scholars in the field of the candidate's expertise and scholarship. The process of selecting scholars (referees) who would review the candidate's record should allow for some participation by the candidate in providing a suggested list of scholars. The list of referees drawn by the GSEHD shall be developed with input from faculty in the candidate's field. The final list of chosen solicited scholars shall, to the extent possible, draw names from both the candidate's and the GSEHD's list. The Department Chair must specify which of the external reviewers were on the candidate's list, which were on the GSEHD's list, and which were on both lists. The candidate shall submit a list of potential scholars in the field who might serve as external reviewers by June 1, along with a sufficient number of copies of the materials to be sent to the external reviewers. Under no circumstance shall the external reviewers have any conflict of interest, directly or indirectly with the candidate. By June 10, the Department Chair shall devise a list of external reviewers. She/he shall seek more than the minimum number of letters to ensure a sufficient number of responses. The deadline for receiving the external letters is October 1. Scholars reviewing the candidate's submitted dossier shall be prominent experts in the candidate's field who shall, following the guidelines in this document, provide candid and written assessment of the candidate's dossier chronicling her/his accomplishments in the areas of scholarship. All external reviewers shall have no conflict of interest or any questionable association with the candidate, whether remotely or closely. All external letters become part of the candidate's documentation that shall be reviewed by the personnel committees.

D. The solicited external reviewers should receive copies of the candidate's scholarly works. The letter of solicitation written by the Department Chair (see sample at the end of this document) should be clear that an assessment of the quality of scholarship achieved by the candidate is being sought. The letter should ask the reviewer to provide a thorough and candid written evaluation of the scholarly works submitted by the candidate, as well as some articulation of the basis for that judgment. The letter should ask the reviewer to avoid stating whether the candidate would attain tenure at the reviewer's institution.

E. The Department Chair should assemble all dossier and supporting material, including the external letters, for evaluation by the Department's Personnel Committee, which shall be composed of tenured faculty in that Department who are eligible to vote. For decisions on promotion to a Professor rank, only tenured faculty at the Professor rank are eligible to review the request and vote on the promotion. The Departmental review must be completed no later than October 31. The Department Personnel Committee shall meet and complete its review of the dossier and supporting material submitted by the candidate and the external reviewers by October 31 of the academic year in which the candidate's tenure/promotion request is being reviewed. The Departmental Personnel Committee shall deliberate and then vote by secret ballot on the merit of the candidate's request for promotion and/or tenure using the criteria established by the GSEHD (refer to the Criteria section). Absentee or proxy voting by members of the Department's Personnel Committee is not allowed since faculty must participate in the deliberations of the committee as it reviews the application. Eligible voters present will vote. A majority in favor of the action is needed for the committee to recommend her/his promotion and/or tenure. Immediately after the Personnel Committee's vote is submitted, the Chair must inform the candidate of the outcome of the vote.

F. The Department Chair must forward to the SWPC a summary of the Departmental Personnel Committee's deliberation and the outcome of the vote, along with the candidate's submitted dossier, no later than November 7.

G. The GSEHD SWPC shall meet no later than December 7 to review the request by the candidate and the supporting material. All assessments of the merits of the candidate's request for promotion and/or tenure, by the SWPC as well as the Departmental Personnel Committee, will be considered confidential; all votes will be cast by secret ballot.

H. Contents of the dossier which comprise the material to be reviewed by the GSEHD SWPC for the purpose of evaluating the candidate's request for promotion and/or tenure, must include evidence of effective teaching, evidence of research and scholarly productivity, and evidence of service to the Department, the School, the University and other professional or community organizations. Dossier contents as well as suggested sample materials are outlined in the "Dossier Content" at the end of this document. At a minimum, the dossier submitted by the candidate must include:

1. A copy of the current GSEHD and Departmental bylaws and policies that are being used for evaluating the promotion and/or tenure request by the candidate.

2. A summary statement that synthesizes evidence of excellence in each of the areas of scholarship, teaching, and service.

VI. Sample Letter Requesting External Evaluation of a Tenure Candidate's Scholarly Work

Dear Dr. [Name]:

You have been nominated to review the dossier of [candidate], who is being considered for [tenure and/or promotion] to the rank of [associate professor/professor] in the Graduate School of Education and Human Development at The George Washington University, Washington, D.C. I am writing to ask if you would be willing to serve as an outside reviewer for [candidate]. I have attached a copy of [her/his] curriculum vitae for your information.

If you are willing and able, we ask that you evaluate [candidate's] scholarship according to the following criteria for tenure and promotion to [associate professor/professor] in the Graduate School of Education and Human Development: (1) whether [candidate's] record provides evidence of sustained excellence in scholarly activity as demonstrated by refereed and/or other reviewed published works, with the expectation of continued publications; and (2) whether [candidate] has achieved recognition as a valued and productive scholar. Our GSEHD bylaws indicate that “Strong and consistent evidence of scholarship that establishes a pattern of excellence and significant contribution to the field or area of expertise. No specific number of products, single authored, or coauthored, would determine a pattern of productivity, and emphasis is placed on the qualitative aspects of scholarly contributions, such as their importance, rigor, originality, and scope.”

If you are willing to serve as a reviewer, we will send you a packet including [candidate's] research statement, [her/his] curriculum vitae, [her/his] published papers, and selected papers that are under review. We have this packet ready to send to you immediately. We request your review by October 1, electronically if possible, in the form of a letter to me at [e-mail address]. GSEHD Guidelines for Renewal and Promotion of Non-Tenure Accruing Full-Time Regular Faculty

I. Overview

In the Graduate School of Education and Human Development (GSEHD) of The George Washington University (GWU), a faculty member (candidate) seeking contract renewal or promotion is expected to demonstrate a record of productivity in all functions of her/his appointment, including administrative responsibilities, if applicable; a faculty member (candidate) seeking promotion is expected to demonstrate a record of excellence in all functions of her/his appointment, including administrative responsibilities, if applicable. A candidate is also expected to be productive in her/his position's primary responsibilities as stipulated in the letter of appointment. In the event that the nature of appointment or the job description has undergone significant changes since the initial appointment, as determined by the GSEHD Dean and the Department Chair, such changes must be documented in a revised letter of appointment issued by the University Provost/Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs, in accordance with a recommendation from the Department Chair. At all times, each non-tenure-accruing faculty member should have a letter of appointment in their personnel file that reflects expectations of her/his position. This letter will provide the basis for the evaluative criteria of contract renewal and/or promotion decisions.

Contract renewal of non-tenure-accruing full-time regular faculty in the GSEHD is based on evidence of high-quality teaching, scholarship, service, and administrative responsibilities following the GWU Faculty Code. Performance excellence, as defined by the criteria below is required for contract renewal. The candidate should have effectively taught a schedule of courses that meets her/his program's needs and established a successful teaching record. As delineated by the candidate's appointment letter, she/he should have maintained an active program of scholarship and should have provided service and administrative contributions (as they apply) following the stated criteria and procedures in this document.

Promotion of non-tenure-accruing full-time regular faculty is based on performance excellence as defined in the criteria below for the ranks of Associate Professor and Professor. A minimum of six years of service in rank is required for promotion from Assistant Professor to Associate Professor. A minimum of five years of service in rank is required for promotion from Associate Professor to Professor. In teaching, the candidate should have effectively taught a schedule of courses that meets her/his program's needs and established a successful teaching record. As delineated by the candidate's appointment letter, she/he should have maintained an active program of scholarship and should have provided service and administrative contributions following the criteria and procedures in this document. As judged by the candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee, the GSEHD SWPC and the GSEHD Dean, and aided by selected external reviewers who articulate the candidate's scholarly contributions, the candidate's work must be seen as having significantly advanced or served the field through her/his scholarship. Additionally, for promotion to a Professor rank, the candidate must have demonstrated excellence in scholarship that has made important contributions to the candidate's field, going beyond contributions made at the previous rank, and must have provided valued leadership in service and administrative responsibilities within and outside the University. It is expected that through her/his work, the candidate for promotion to Professor will have achieved a national/international reputation as a scholar and/or a leader.

What follows is a detailed description of the how requests for contract renewal and/or promotions of non-tenure-accruing regular faculty are evaluated and the procedures to be followed in the GSEHD. These guidelines constitute the criteria for renewal and promotion of non-tenure-accruing full-time regular faculty in the GSEHD. Individual Departmental bylaws regarding contract renewal and promotion of non-tenure-accruing regular faculty augment but do not supersede these guidelines.

A non-tenure-accruing faculty member submitting a request for contract renewal and/or promotion must provide well-organized documentation and information about the scope of her/his work. Additionally, the candidate must provide evidence of the quality of her/his contributions in the areas of teaching, scholarship, and administrative responsibilities as they apply, and service as stated in her/his contractual letter(s) of appointment and subsequent revisions. Such documentation must be presented in an organized dossier of materials outlining accomplishments since the last contractual appointment/renewal, as described in the "Dossier Content" at the end of this document.

Failure by the University to conform to these procedures and the timelines contained in them will not be grounds for a rehearing/re-review unless the failure materially damages the candidate's chances.

II. The Faculty Development Panel for Non-Tenure Accruing Faculty

- C. With input from faculty in the candidate's Department, the Department Chair recommends and the GSEHD Dean appoints members of the Faculty Development Panel, that shall be established at the inception of the candidate's position by the Department Chair. With the candidate's concurrence, a Faculty Development Panel comprising a minimum of two tenured or non-tenured faculty members (one of whom must be appointed in the candidate's Department), who have expertise in the candidate's or a closely related field shall offer informal guidance to the non-tenure accruing candidate as she/he works towards contract renewal and, if requested, her/his promotion. The Faculty Development Panel shall assume a mentoring and advisory role and not assume any formal supervisory or performance evaluation role. This Panel shall meet with the candidate at least twice annually to provide guidance as to her/his progress towards attaining renewal of her/his contract. With the candidate's approval, Faculty Development Panel members may request copies of the candidate's annual personnel evaluation reports from the Dean's office for use as they advise the candidate.
- D. After the first contract renewal decision for a candidate, the mentoring and advisory role of the Faculty Development Panel shall cease.

III. Criteria for Contract Renewal and/or Promotion of Non-Tenure Accruing Faculty

At the time of the contractual appointment, the University Provost/Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs will write a letter to the candidate indicating the nature of the appointment. This letter must detail the nature of the responsibilities of the candidate's position, with clear percentages of the candidate's expected job effort divided among teaching, scholarship, service, and administrative responsibilities. This letter must be consistent with the original position description used to recruit for the position assumed by the candidate or any changes thereafter. The Departmental Personnel Committee and the GSEHD Faculty and Personnel Committee must use this letter from the Provost/Vice President for Academic Affairs as the basis and guide for evaluating the candidate's request and in arriving at their recommendation regarding contract renewal or promotion. All assessments of the merits of the candidate's request for contract renewal or promotion by the Faculty and Personnel Committee as well as the Departmental Personnel Committee shall be considered confidential, and all votes will be secret ballot. In the event that the nature of the appointment and position description had significantly changed since the faculty member's initial appointment, as determined by the GSEHD Dean and the candidate's Department Chair, such changes shall be documented in a revised letter issued by the University Provost/Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs, in accordance with a recommendation by the Department Chair. The revised letter shall be used by personnel committees in their evaluation of the candidate's submitted record. At all times, every non-tenure-accruing faculty member will have a letter that accurately reflects her/his current position description and the expectations for the position. It is the responsibility of the GSEHD Dean to ensure that every non-tenure-accruing faculty has a current letter of appointment that accurately reflects the terms of the contract.

For contract renewal requests, only the candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee shall review the material submitted by the candidate as indicated below to make recommendations for the renewal of the candidate's contract. The Departmental committee shall forward its recommendations concerning the contract renewal request directly to the GSEHD Dean.

For promotion requests, both the Departmental Personnel Committee and the GSEHD Faculty and Personnel Committee must review the evidence of excellence presented by contract non-tenure-accruing faculty and assess their performance in the areas of teaching, scholarship, administrative responsibilities, and service as described below to arrive at a decision of whether the candidate sufficiently meets the criteria to be recommended for promotion.

Candidates for contract renewal or promotion who have appointments in more than one Department in the GSEHD shall be evaluated by both Departmental committees if the appointment is equally shared by both Departments and if the letter of appointment clearly states the candidate's responsibilities in both Departments. Otherwise, only the home Department that assumes most of the budgeted salary shall conduct the evaluation.

The sections below detail the evidence and criteria for the candidate's teaching, scholarship, administrative responsibilities, and service accomplishments that are reviewed by both the Personnel Committee of the candidate's Department and in cases of promotion, the GSEHD

SWPC, to assess the merits of the candidate's request and recommend action.

1. Teaching

Excellent teaching and academic advising are essential in contract renewal and promotion decisions. The non-tenure-accruing candidate under review for contract renewal and/or promotion is expected to be regularly and effectively engaged in teaching and advising activities of high quality. The dissemination of knowledge through effective teaching has many manifestations, including classroom instruction, the skillful use of technology, and a broad range of faculty-student relationships. Instruction is expected to reflect the expertise and skillful use of the faculty member's own research, practice, and knowledge gained that enhances the learning experiences of students.

Teaching is broadly defined to include activities such as classroom instruction, instruction using technological media, laboratory or clinical setting instruction, academic advising, dissertation/thesis advising and directing, mentoring, program building, and curricular innovation. Factors considered in assessing teaching performance or promise include (but not limited to) knowledge of the material, clarity of delivery, effective communication skills, helpfulness in learning, style of interaction with students, availability, professionalism, institutional compliance and ethics, and ability to stimulate further education.

It is the responsibility of the GSEHD's administration and the candidate to plan teaching assignments so that the candidate can gain experience and develop skills in the types of coursework relevant to the educational mission of the GSEHD and her/his program while teaching in areas that are appropriate for the candidate. The responsibility for the evaluation of teaching performance rests on the candidate's academic Department. Each academic Department shall have clearly developed and disseminated criteria to be used in the evaluation of the teaching performance of its faculty. The evaluation should include course evaluations by students and peer evaluations by colleagues. Evidence of the candidate's teaching and advising skills shall be collected and considered in the contract renewal and/or promotion review process.

The quality of teaching is commonly considered to include (but is not limited to) the following factors:

- Knowledge of a field and developments within it
- Skillfully communicating with students, arousing their interest, and helping them learn substantive content and skills
- Stimulating students to think critically
- Applying knowledge to solving problems, when appropriate

Specific aspects of teaching to be considered include course development, classroom teaching, student advising and mentoring, and responsibility for doctoral dissertations. The GSEHD expects its faculty to demonstrate evidence of teaching quality and effectiveness through the following ways:

- Student course evaluations: Positive summary of teaching evaluations for all courses taught, as evidenced by student course evaluations that demonstrate at or above Departmental average overall instructor and course ratings (required).
- Course development and practice: Sustained involvement in curriculum review and evaluation, self-directed learning activities, and if called for, innovative and creative change of teaching methods, materials, and pedagogy, as evidenced by course syllabi with additional comments about changes, innovations, and improvements (required).
- Peer evaluations: Generally positive peer evaluations (required).
- Advising and dissertation/thesis supervision: Advising students as applicable. Examples include: supervising theses, master's projects, or dissertation research and serving on dissertation committees, as evidenced by documentation of the numbers of students advised, degree objective, and the advisory role (i.e., Chair, committee member).
- Student support and development: Teaching activities that involve student development and support or the conduct of seminars, workshops, resource and instructional websites, or other learning experiences for students, faculty, alumni, or other interested groups as evidenced by the number of students advised, degree objective, and the advisory role. Additional evidence may include documentation of involvement in student activities, mentoring, dissertation seminars, alumni accomplishments, etc.
- Other: Evidence of remaining current in and/or expanding one's field of specialization through appropriate faculty development activities as evidenced by, for example, teaching assignments elsewhere, team teaching, conduct of professional seminars or workshops, participation in teacher effectiveness workshops, attendance at professional conferences, obtaining additional degrees or certificates, etc.

2. Scholarship

The record in support of the request for contract renewal, or promotion from the rank of Assistant Professor to Associate Professor or from the rank of Associate Professor to Professor; must include evidence of productive scholarship in contributions to the scholarly literature or to relevant practice or policy. These contributions can be in the form of scholarly publications, presentations at scholarly meetings, or other relevant professional activities. An addendum of scholarly activities may be submitted by the candidate up to the day before the Departmental Personnel Committee meets to consider the personnel action request.

For promotion requests, the evidence of the quality of scholarly work must be established by solicited letters from experts about the quality of work or evidence of the impact or influence of the work on the scholarly literature or relevant practice or policy. The process of selecting scholars (referees) who would review the candidate's record should allow for participation by the candidate in providing a list of scholars. The list of scholars should be combined into a final list and, to the extent possible, names evenly drawn from both the candidate's and her/his Department's list. Under no circumstance shall the external reviewers have any conflict of interest, directly or indirectly, with the candidate. The solicited scholars in the field should receive an abbreviated record of the candidate's scholarship, as well as a sample of candidate's scholarly products. The letter of solicitation written by the candidate's Department Chair to the reviewing scholars should be clear in seeking an assessment of only scholarship. In this letter (see a sample at the end of this document), the Department Chair asks the reviewing scholars to evaluate the scholar's contribution to the field. For promotion to the rank of Associate Professor, the candidate's Department Chair must secure at least five (5) letters attesting to the quality of her/his work written by experts in the field of the candidate's expertise and scholarship. For promotion to the rank of Professor, the candidate's Department Chair must obtain at least five (5) letters attesting to the quality of the candidate's work from recognized scholars in the field of the candidate's expertise and scholarship. Below is a sample letter to be sent to external reviewers seeking their assistance.

For promotion applications, the candidate must submit to the Department Chair a list of at least seven (7) potential scholars who are qualified to review (referee) her/his accomplishments to the Department Chair in accordance with GSEHD and University guidelines. The process of selecting scholars (referees) who would review the candidate's record should allow for some participation by the candidate in providing a suggested list of scholars. The list of referees drawn by the GSEHD shall be developed with input from faculty in the candidate's field. The final list of chosen solicited scholars shall, to the extent possible, draw names from both the candidate's and the GSEHD's list. The Department Chair must specify which of the external reviewers were on the candidate's list, which were on the GSEHD's list, and which were on both lists.

The solicited scholars in the field should receive an abbreviated record of the candidate's scholarship, as well as a sample of the candidate's scholarly work. The letter of solicitation, written by the candidate's Department Chair to the reviewing scholars, should be clear in seeking an assessment of only scholarship. In this letter, the Department Chair asks the reviewing scholars to provide an evaluation of the candidate's contribution to the field. For promotions to the rank of associate professor or professor, the Department Chair must secure at least five letters attesting to the quality of the candidate's work written by experts in the candidate's field of expertise and scholarship. Letters are due by October 1. All external letters must become part of the candidate's documentation reviewed by the personnel committees.

To assist candidates in preparing their application for contract renewal or promotion, the following breakdown of types of evidence is provided. Evidence of productivity in scholarship may include the following:

- A. Scholarly publications: Strong and consistent evidence of scholarship that establishes a pattern of excellence and significant contribution to the field or area of expertise. No specific number, single authored or coauthored, determines a pattern of productivity, and emphasis is placed on the qualitative aspects of scholarly contributions, such as their importance, rigor, originality, and scope. Typical patterns of excellent contributions for those with equal distribution of effort (among teaching, scholarship, and service) can be, but are not limited to, at least and on average, one refereed scholarly work each year since the last promotion or initial appointment, with the expectation that the candidate mixes refereed and non-refereed products that characterize the quality of her/his contributions. While this example is a typical minimum, the GSEHD values the quality of scholarship as superseding any absolute number of scholarly products. If the non-tenure accruing faculty's effort (as stipulated by the appointment letter) is not equally apportioned among teaching, scholarship, and service; then the expectations for scholarship productivity shall take into account such arrangement. In addition, work published prior to assuming the non-tenure accruing position at GSEHD shall be considered. These works may be the following:

- a. Articles in peer-reviewed journals and publications
 - b. Books published by a respected press with a national reputation and distribution
 - c. Edited books published by a respected press with a national reputation and distribution
 - d. Peer-reviewed conference proceedings, monographs, or standardized test manuals, published by a professional society
 - e. Chapters in an edited book
 - f. Published video or multimedia work
 - g. Invited articles in refereed publications
- B. Funded grant proposals by nationally recognized agencies and foundations
- C. Presentations at professional meetings: Evidence of presentations at professional meetings (regional, national, or international) with indication of refereed and non-refereed conferences.
- D. Other: Other examples of scholarship may include curriculum development packages, book reviews (invited and juried), editorial responsibilities for scholarly publications, commissioned papers, technical or grant reports, bulletins, videotapes, manuals, magazine articles, unpublished manuscripts, non-juried journal articles, seminars, other invited presentations, major exhibits and demonstrations, and submitted, but unfunded, grant proposals.

3. Administrative Responsibilities

Since not all contract non-tenure-accruing faculty members assume administrative responsibilities and responsibilities, only those with such responsibilities as indicated in their letter of appointment are subject to evaluation in this area. Effective and successful fulfillment of administrative responsibilities can be demonstrated through accomplishments and contributions by the candidate beyond those expected in teaching, scholarship, and service based on the position description in the candidate's appointment letter. Effectiveness in administration is primarily determined by the Department Chair and the GSEHD Dean. Although successful accomplishments in these responsibilities vary depending on the nature and responsibilities of the position, the following are typical activities that are expected and considered by the Departmental Personnel Committee and GSEHD SWPC and should be listed and documented:

- A. Coordinate, administer, and manage programs: This may include service as a program area coordinator or project/program director and any other related contributions.
- B. Develop new programs or enhance existing concentrations or specialties in her/his program.

- C. Evaluate programs: This may include assessing goal accomplishment, assessing student satisfaction, and other related functions.
- D. Contribute to and lead program development efforts.
- E. Assume leadership for (rather than participate in) accreditation and program evaluation activities.
- F. Develop and evaluate initiatives that promote the program and its growth and quality.
- G. Market the program and/or recruit new students.
- H. Work with regular and adjunct faculty to provide a consistently high-quality program of instruction.
- I. Coordinate clinical training activities such as arranging and overseeing clinical placements, providing clinical supervision, and serving as a coordinator of an off-campus training site.

4. Service

The GSEHD expects its faculty members to engage in academic service to the University, the community, and the profession, and it values this service. By virtue of their special scholarly or professional qualifications and expertise, faculty members often render distinctive service to various committees, boards, scholarly/professional organizations, councils, schools, and other entities outside the GSEHD. This may include service such as membership on University committees, consultation with a variety of institutions, appointment to a leadership position of a scholarly and/or professional organization, and appointment as an editor or editorial board member for a scholarly journal. In general, a constructive record of academic service is a positive factor in appraising appointment, reappointment (with or without tenure), or promotion. Service to community organizations and governmental agencies in advisory or consulting roles constitutes an important factor in appointment, reappointment, promotion, and tenure decisions.

The candidate can effectively serve through accomplishments and contributions beyond those expected in teaching and scholarship. The following activities are valued.

A. Internal service

1. Membership on committees: Participation on standing and ad hoc committees at the University, School, and Departmental levels.
2. Completion of special projects and assignments: Services such as, but not limited to, editing GSEHD and University publications, coordinating a colloquium series, advising a student organization, or providing service to an organization.

B. External service

1. Participation in the profession: Evidence of participation in professional organizations and societies (state, regional, national, or international) as an officer, conference organizer, discussant/Chair of conference sessions, committee Chair, editor, advisory or editorial board member, or committee member; completion of a special assignment; or contribution through workshop or discussion presentations at state, regional, or national meetings. Candidates seeking the rank of Professor should have exhibited leadership in service activities such as chairing committees, serving as an external reviewer for other institutions, carrying out administrative responsibilities, authoring a report or editorial, holding governing board memberships, or serving as a journal editor.

2. Communication to the field: Publication of service-oriented papers, such as reports of meetings or events, magazine columns, bulletins, videotapes, manuals, magazine articles, opinion pieces, calls for action, and other forms of writing that do not meet the criteria for scholarly publications listed above.
3. Consultant to community organizations: Service to community or global organizations, such as schools, school districts, community/business organizations, nonprofit organizations, or social service agencies.

Dossier contents as well as suggested sample materials are outlined below.

The dossier for contract renewal submitted by the candidate must include:

V. Deadlines for Contract Renewal and/or Promotion Review of Non-Tenure Accruing Faculty

By April 1st: The Office of the Dean notifies the candidate of her/his eligibility for contract renewal and the requirements of the process in writing. For promotion requests, the faculty candidate must notify her/his Department Chair in writing of the intention to be considered for promotion. Requests for promotion to a non-tenure accruing Associate Professor rank can only be considered during (or any time after) the sixth contractual year in which the candidate served in the Assistant Professor rank. Promotion to a Professor rank can only be considered after an Associate Professor serves at least five contractual years in her/his rank.

By April 30: For contract renewal and promotion requests, the Department Chair should meet with the faculty candidate to discuss the GSEHD guidelines, procedures, and the required contents of the contract renewal/promotion dossier.

By June 1: The candidate for promotion (only) must submit samples of her/his scholarly accomplishments organized in a folder along with a statement of scholarship. The candidate must also provide her/his Department Chair with a list of potential external reviewers of the candidate's scholarly contributions. The list must include at least seven names of recognized scholars in the field, with their contact information. The Department Chair, in accordance with GSEHD bylaws and the University Faculty Code, would solicit similar lists from the Department's faculty in the candidate's field. By June 10, the Department Chair will then select at least five referees for promotion requests. As much as possible, there should be even representation from both lists in the selection of the final referees. Under no circumstance shall the external reviewers have a conflict of interest, directly or indirectly, with the candidate. Those external referees will be solicited by the Department Chair to write letters assessing the contributions by the candidate to her/his field in her/his area(s) of responsibilities. Included with the letter is the candidate's statement about her/his accomplishments in the field and copies of exemplars of the candidate's scholarship. External reviewers shall be asked to submit their own curriculum vita along with their assessment letters. The external review letters must be received by the Department no later than October 1.

By September 15: The candidate for contract renewal and/or promotion must submit her/his dossier to her/his Department Chair for review, following the guidelines delineated in the "Dossier Content" section of this document.

By October 31: The candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee must meet to deliberate and vote by secret ballot based on the criteria set by the GSEHD and any additional criteria for contract renewal and promotion of non-tenure-accruing faculty set by the Department. Absentee or proxy voting by members of the Department's Personnel Committee is not allowed since faculty must participate in the deliberations of the committee as it reviews the application. The candidate's Departmental Personnel Committee must submit its written recommendation regarding the candidate's request to the Department Chair on or about October 31. The letter must include its recommendation regarding granting the contract renewal or promotion, the vote, and its rationale for the decision. For contract renewal requests, the GSEHD Dean will review all submitted materials and forward her/his recommendation to the University Provost/Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs by the University's deadline. For promotion requests, a summary of the deliberation by the Department Personnel Committee, and the candidate's submitted complete dossier shall be forwarded by the Department Chair to the Dean's office by November 7, who in turn shall forward this packet to the GSEHD School-Wide Personnel Committee (SWPC) for its review of the request.

By December 7: The GSEHD SWPC shall meet to review the promotion request by the candidate and the supporting material. All assessments of the merits of the candidate's request for promotion by the SWPC, as well as the Departmental Personnel Committee, will be considered confidential; all votes will be cast by secret ballot.

By December 15: The GSEHD SWPC must submit its recommendation regarding the candidate's request to the GSEHD Dean in writing. The letter must include the committee's recommendation regarding the promotion request, the vote, and its rationale for the recommendation. The SWPC will provide a copy of the recommendation to candidate's Department Chair. VII. Sample Letter Requesting External Evaluation of a Non-Tenure Accruing Candidate's Scholarly Work

Dear Dr. [Name]:

Thank you for agreeing to serve as an external evaluator of the scholarly record of [candidate], who is being considered for promotion to rank of non-tenure-accruing [associate professor/professor] in the Department of [name] at The George Washington University, Washington, D.C. Having completed similar reviews for other universities, I am well aware of the time this effort takes and very much appreciate your contribution. I have enclosed copies of [candidate's] curriculum vita, statement of research and scholarship, and exemplars of [her/his] scholarly work.

As all schools vary somewhat in the criteria that are applied, we ask that you evaluate excellence in [candidate's] scholarship according to the following criteria for non-tenure faculty promotion to [associate professor/professor] in the Graduate School of Education and Human Development. Consider whether [candidate's] record provides evidence of sustained scholarly activity of high quality in the form of refereed and/or other reviewed published works, with the expectations of continued publications, and whether [candidate] has achieved recognition as a noteworthy and productive scholar. Our GSEHD bylaws state that "Strong and consistent evidence of scholarship that establishes a pattern of excellence and significant contribution to the field or area of expertise. No specific number of products, single authored or coauthored, would determine a pattern of productivity, and emphasis is placed on the qualitative aspects of scholarly contributions, such as their importance, rigor, originality, and scope." The purpose of this review is to assess whether the record of Dr. [Name] as a faculty member in a non-tenure-accruing appointment is sufficient for promotion to the rank sought.

Please send your evaluation by October 1, [year], electronically, if possible, in the form of a letter to me at [e-mail address]. If it is necessary to use regular mail, please send your evaluation to [mailing address]. Please also include your own CV or bio-sketch.

We ask that you please treat this request and your review as confidential.

On behalf of the Department of [Name] at The George Washington University, I am very grateful for your time and effort in this most important process and thank you personally for your willingness to participate. Should you need further clarification, please do not hesitate to contact me via e-mail or by phone at [number] (office) or [number] (home).
