This document is supplemental program information that may be helpful when considering application to the Graduate School of Education & Human Development.

Degree: M.A. in Ed. & H.D.
Field of Study: International Education

Unique Program Features:
Recently designated UNESCO Chair, the International Education program boasts an active speaker series through a well-connected Washington DC network of experts, an engaged student association, and internship opportunities with area NGOs and institutions.

The flexible curriculum requires one course in the mix of carefully chosen elective coursework that allows each student to follow their interests - whether they be to deepen a geographic expertise or incorporating international perspectives.

Graduates of this program have been found employed at:
Alliance for Global Education
American University
Beyond Student Travel
George Mason ISO
Institute of International Education
IREX
ISEP Study Abroad
RTI International
SIT Study Abroad
The International Monetary Fund
The World Bank
US Peace Corps
US State Department
World Learning
The following curriculum is indicative of our required course of study.
(Full lists of official GSEHD courses can be found in the GW Bulletin.)

The program, which requires 36 credit hours and allows a selection from a variety of specialization areas.
(1) A minimum of 15 credit hours is required in the international education studies area
(2) A 9-credit specialty complements the major area of study and may be taken in any division of the University.
(3) Up to 6 additional credit hours of internship may be required for students who do not have international education related experience.

6601: Introductory Course (highly encouraged)
International and Comparative Education

6602: Regional Studies in International Education
• Education & Equality in Latin America and the Caribbean
• Education & Development in Sub-Saharan Africa
• Education & Modernization in East Asia
• Education & Transition in Eastern Europe
• Education & Diversity in Europe and the EU
• Education in Islamic Asia
• Comparative Solutions to Common Educational Problems

6610: Specialization with International Education
• Planning Education Reform
• Managing International Students & Studies Programs
• Designing and Managing International Development Projects
• International Education Technology & Development Design

6630: International Experiences (short-term study abroad)
6631: Internship & Experience in International Education
6632: Research in International Education
6650: Education & National Development
6114: Quantitative Methods (required)

6640: Selected topics in International Education (UNESCO in the 21st Century, Citizenship, Culture, and Education in the Global Era, Study Abroad, Evaluation, International Student Advising, Internationalizing U.S. Schools, Education in Emergencies, Education Programs for Youth Development, etc)